WHAT CAUSE TO BREED.—To raise cattle for beef, the Short-horn are preferable. They attain large size, take on flesh readily, mature early, and make most excellent beef. They need good feed and good attention, and will reward one for bestowing it. No other breed equals this for beef purposes. On account of their tendency to take fat so readily, they are not generally good milkers, though there are exceptions to this. Some kinds of Short-horns are said to be fine milkers.

If the object is to obtain quantity of milk to sell by the gallon or to make cheese, the Ayrshire is the breed you want. Their milk is not as rich as some breeds produce.

If the best butter cow is wanted, the Little Jersey stands at the head of the class. What she lacks in quantity, she more than makes up in quality. Nearly one-fourth of her milk is pure cream. The butter is golden yellow, of the highest flavor, and commands the highest price. Their disposition is quiet, and they are naturally peaceful.

For working cattle, the Devon leads the list. They are a very hardy race, give rich milk, and make fine beef. For hilly countries and scant herbage, no breed surpasses this. The object is to make money by breeding, per se, select any good breed, obtain the very best breeding animals of that breed, give them the best care and attention, and try to get the most milk per cow, and you will succeed. Every breeder should strive not to be surpassed in his line. He must see to the care of his stock in all, and not neglect the others, for they will neglect many things that are very essential to the highest success. —Rural Home.

TO MAKE WIRE FENCE.—I will give my fashion of wire fence, that will stop sheep, cattle and hogs, and set the wire at each post, but do not drive them tight, at every twentieth post (having a post with a wide, flat side, and have it well braced). I bore through with half-inch bit and put the wire through it instead of the staples. I cut the wire at this post, and I have some cuts off a hand saw, and turn each cut 11-16 inches long. I bore two holes 11-16 inches, one in each end, so the holes will be at right angles to each other; then bore one hole in the middle of the wire, and turn it 11-16 inches long; now put the wire through the hole in the post, then through the small hole in the wire, and turn it 11-16 inches long; then turn the wire so as to form a lock; then with the two irons I can tighten the wire as tight as I please, and when it is tight, put in a short pin in one of the holes and leave it. The strain comes on the whole wire, and in December he can let back these round ends or rollers, and so loosen the wire for winter. Last, I put five or six straight sticks in the wire in every space between posts. The sticks are five feet long and split from some durable timber.

TO DRIVE A STAKE OVER EACH WIRE.—I set a stake over each wire, one at each end of the lot, and drive it tight. I let the lower end of the stake rest on the ground, using a notched board to keep the wire in place while putting in the stake. I think it is better than any other method; I use six wires, and the spaces may be as follows:—1st, 6 inches; 2d, 6 inches; 3d, 7 inches; 4th, 9 inches; 5th, 11 inches; 6th, 13 inches; 7th, 15 inches;
